"Can't connect right now, try again later": Remote play/game streaming does not work for 48 now

Remote Play

(Typo in the title: *48h) It already happened a few months ago but it did not last as long as this time, so I get kinda worried: I can't connect to my console on the Win10 app, on my phone or on the game streaming test app, it just says "can't connect right now, try again later" without any explanation. My connection is perfect on both ends (wired 1gbps for the XSX and 300mpbs wifi for phone and PC), and I already tried restarting the console.

Update: it was my controller that needed a firmware update. I did the update and restarted the console, and everything worked again.

I had the same issue over the weekend on the iOS app. I could see my XSX was online and using bandwidth, but repeatedly got the, "Try again in awhile. We can't connect to your console right now." It worked no problem for 3 days & then Saturday & Sunday nothing.

My remote play dropped too. I ended up restarting and then testing the remote play connection via settings. Everything came back good. I was able to connect right after. As far as I can tell nothing changed before or after the issue.

Yea everytime they do something with the insider program and streaming it breaks it for a few days for everyone. Idk why they keep messing up like this. Idk how it effects noninsiders too

I'm still not able to connect on my iPhone at all... says "found your console but cannot connect" unless I'm on my home wifi network with it.

This does still work outside your home network on cellular data right? I've tried everything not sure what else

I turned on my xbox manually and then went on my iPad and tried remote play again and it starting working. Don't know if this fix will work outside the home network but you can try.

I am also having the same issue! It's been working fine while I'm at work playing on my iPhone's 5G network connection via at&t. So yes, you can use remote play on your cellular provider network. I restarted my Xbox last night as I had the same issue a month ago and it didn't fix the issue. Not sure what's going on

I have been using remote play for over a week with no issues. I have tried troubleshooting as well and googled my heart out, still haven't found anything.

- On iOS (iPhone 12 Pro)
- In the xbox app, press the little icon in upper right corner to access remote menu for the console.
 - this is where I would normally press "Remote play on this device", which sometimes gives the "Try again later" message
- instead, press "Open remote control"
- Usually it will show "console on standby" or something like that near the top, as that's how I leave it when not playing (i.e. long press the xbox button and choose "turn off console" from onscreen menu buttons)
- Press the onscreen Xbox button in top middle. This turns console on.
- Can then see "Console on" as the message at top.
- From there, "long touch" the onscreen xbox button in top middle
 - you won't see anything happen on phone, but this brings up the xbox screen to power off the console.
- Swipe "up" in the middle area of phone to direct the xbox to the "turn off console" button, then "tap in the center" (equivalent to A button) to select "turn off console"
 - this is equivalent to using similar method on physical controller to power console down into standby.
- Xbox powers down.
- Go back to main screen of xbox app, and enter into remote play.

Anecdotally, this seems to work for me. If need be, you can practice turning the console on/off using the "open remote control" function of xbox app, while you're sitting in front of your tv. Then you can practice doing it blind. Hope that helps anyone that needs to power cycle from out of standby, to on, to back to standby.

If you guys are still having this issue all you need to do is disconnect your Bluetooth if you have any speakers on it can interfere with the console for some reason but you can reconnect your speaker after your remote play is connected. Then restart both your iPhone and console doesn't really have to be at the same time and it should work

Hey guys, I was wondering if you have some insight on my current issue with remote gaming. I'm using the Xbox and remote play for a while, never an issue. Now I wanted to let my brother who lives in Germany use remote play by connecting his mobile device (I live in Stockholm today) to my xbox just so he can play whenever he feels like. For some reason he can't connect though - remote control works, but not playing. He is using an android.

Not sure how to solve this. Feedback is much appreciated :)
